WHAT IS THE RISK IF ACCREDITED PRODUCERS DO NOT COMPLY WITH LPA REGULATIONS?

The requirements of LPA guarantee the safe and ethical production of red meat on Australian farms, with consideration of biosecurity. As an industry, failure to meet these requirements may threaten our industry's international reputation and consumers' trust in our product. The non-compliance of a single farmer poses a potential risk to this guarantee. LPA-accredited producers are subject to random audits. Should the audit highlight a failure to comply with the LPA regulations the producer may have their LPA accreditation revoked or suspended pending resolution of the identified issue/s.
